

TURNING DOWN THE HEAT

FROM A CULTURE OF PROTEST TO A SEAT AT THE TABLE

A COMMUNITY-LED INITIATIVE ON DEMOCRATIC INNOVATION

PURPOSE

Many people are concerned about the state of our democracy and the quality of public discourse today. Whether discussing politics, social issues, community concerns, or matters affecting everyday life, conversations can quickly become adversarial. This can lead to political pendulum swings rather than effective decision-making that serves everyone. Despite empirical evidence showing that most citizens agree on fundamental issues, solutions are frequently sabotaged by polarized rhetoric. This initiative addresses a simple but profound question: How can we turn down the heat and create conditions for more respectful, thoughtful, and productive public conversations?

PROCESS

The project will bring together leaders of thought from the Greater Victoria area for a cross-sector conversation involving public officials, academics, business, Indigenous and community leaders. This initial in-person meeting will examine the methods and practices of deliberative democracy, aided by Information and resources that are available online to the public.

THEMES

- Recent innovations in deliberative democracy, such as citizens assemblies in B.C. and Ireland, collaborative governance initiatives and digital initiatives such as Polis \(Taiwan\) and Decidim (Barcelona, Helsinki, and New York City).
- Indigenous governance and consensus-building traditions, including present-day governance in Nunavut and NWT
- Techniques and methods for navigating disagreement through inclusive, respectful conversations, for healthier decision-making processes at all levels of society.
